

the face of ARCHITECTURE

KKT ARCHITECTS INC.

For 31 years, KKT Architects Inc. has held true to its legacy of providing client-centered, community-focused design. Across KKT's diverse portfolio of project types, President and CEO Sarah Gould, AIA, works closely with the strategic leadership team to continue evolving KKT's vision of innovation and excellence. Gould believes that human potential can be both celebrated and promoted through architecture and design. "What I love about architecture is connecting people: to people, to places and to community," Gould says. "We are passionate about creating spaces that improve lives and enrich communities." She is excited to share the passion with which KKT's leaders contribute to the firm's overall success, including being instrumental in streamlining operations, building relationships with client partners, as well as developing mentorship and growth opportunities within the firm. Previously the Managing Director, Gould was officially named President and CEO in June as Andrew Kinslow, AIA, transitioned to a new stage in his career.

The Tulsa-based firm provides Architecture, Interior Design and Structural Engineering professional services. KKT's key project types include: education, corporate office, healthcare, nonprofit, retail, restaurant and multi-family.

KKT has more than 70 design professionals who are focused on contributing to an inclusive, healthy community, and as a firm it is committed to the core values of character, community, collaboration and creativity.

2200 S. Utica Place, Suite 200 | 918-744-4270 | kktarchitects.com

KKT Strategic Leadership Team (left to right): Ranan Gangel, P.E.; Rob Winters, AIA; Shannon Darnell, IIDA, Well AP; President and CEO Sarah Gould, AIA, A4LE; Barry Goldstein, AIA; Kate Cofer, AIA, IIDA, PMP

